The duties and responsibilities include: teaching, revising, and developing undergraduate engineering courses, and may include both online as well as face-to-face instruction in one or more of the following areas: Aerospace Engineering Design, Aircraft Design, Spacecraft Design, and Aerospace Systems Design. In addition, there may be other service and teaching activities at local, university, state, and national level, as directed by the department chair. The MAE department is specifically looking for faculty candidates with a passion for teaching and a desire to develop a career in engineering education. Teaching assignments will be made according to background and experience and will consist of six to eight course sections per year (twelve-month appointment) in consultation with the department chair. The faculty member will also contribute to continuous curriculum improvement, academic program ABET accreditation, and developing new educational initiatives. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to participate in department, university, and professional service activities. Faculty candidates with experience or willingness to engage in activities that contribute to diversity and inclusion are especially encouraged to apply.

Qualifications:

Ph.D. or M.S. in aerospace engineering or a closely related discipline.

Preferred Qualifications:

Ph.D. in aerospace engineering, or a closely related engineering field, experienced in applying evidence-based teaching techniques and methods to aerospace engineering design courses. Industry experience and/or contacts would be beneficial.

The search committee will begin reviewing applications October 20, 2019 and will continue to receive applications until the positions are filled. You must apply by submitting an application through Interfolio via <http://apply.interfolio.com/69268> (Job 53780). The application with attached PDF files of the following required documents: (1) a letter of interest, (2) a detailed curriculum vitae, (3) a statement of teaching philosophy and interests in existing and new undergraduate courses, (4) a brief statement describing interest and experience in working with diverse groups and underrepresented populations, (5) contact information of three or more references. Although applications will be accepted until the position is filled, the deadline for full consideration is November 15, 2019.

Selected candidate will be required to provide an official transcript to the hiring department upon hire. A transcript will not be considered "official" if a designation of "Issued to Student" is visible. Degrees earned from an educational institution outside of the United States are required to be evaluated by a professional credentialing service provider approved by National Association of Credential Evaluation Services (NACES).
