courses in the online environment. Finally, the successful CPE 690 candidate will be able to perform minor course development duties/content updates.

The ECE department at Stevens currently has 27 full-time faculty, including 1 NAE member, 7 IEEE Fellows, 3 NAI Fellows, and 8 NSF CAREER recipients. ECE faculty are dynamic, collaborative colleagues dedicated to inspiring and educating the next generation of electrical and computer engineers and technical leaders through innovative, interdisciplinary, and impactful research and education programs.

Stevens Institute of Technology is a premier, private research university in Hoboken, New Jersey, overlooking the Manhattan skyline. Stevens prepares its more than 8,000 undergraduate and graduate students for an increasingly complex and technology-centric world, leveraging finance, computing, engineering and the arts to confront the most challenging problems of our time with innovative teaching and research. The university is in the top 1% nationally of colleges with the highest-paid graduates.

Stevens values diversity and seeks candidates who can contribute to a welcoming climate for students, faculty, and staff of all races and genders. We are an NSF ADVANCE institution committed to equitable practices and policies and strongly encourage applications from qualified women and minority candidates, veterans, and individuals with disabilities.

The department will begin to review applications immediately and applications will continue to be accepted until the positions are filled. To apply, please submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a teaching statement that includes teaching interests and teaching philosophy for online teaching, and contact information for three references - please put all materials in one PDF file. Applications should be submitted at <https://www.stevens.edu/directory/division-human-resources/careers-stevens>. For any questions, please contact the Department Chair, Prof. Min Song, at msong6@stevens.edu.
