The Department of Chemical and Biomedical Engineering within the Washkewicz College of Engineering at Cleveland State University (CSU) invites applications for a full-time non-tenure track position as an Assistant College Lecturer commencing August 18, 2025. CSU is committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff, and student body. CSU is striving to be a nationally recognized and student focused public research institution that provides accessible, affordable, and Engaged Learning opportunities for all.

The department has established a new bachelor's program in biomedical engineering, starting in Fall 2024, with the first expected graduating class in 2026. The successful candidate will be expected to teach undergraduate, and possibly graduate-level, biomedical engineering courses; lead senior design projects; develop new instructional laboratories; provide academic advising to students; and participate in faculty governance.

The Chemical and Biomedical Engineering Department offers bachelors, master's, and doctoral degrees in both chemical engineering and biomedical engineering. The PhD program in biomedical engineering is conducted in conjunction with the Lerner Research Institute of the Cleveland Clinic. The Department has a track record of attracting funding from the State of Ohio, federal (NASA, NSF, NIH, USDA) agencies, and industry.

Minimum Qualifications:

- Masters degree in biomedical engineering or related field;
- Excellent communication skills;
- Teaching experience.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Doctorate degree in biomedical engineering or related field;
- Industrial experience;
