a related field by the time of appointment or shortly thereafter. Candidates without these credentials who demonstrate an outstanding record of academic and professional accomplishments may also be considered.

Architectural education at McGill University has a long and distinguished record in housing research and practice, critical historical studies and architectural theory, sustainability, spatial justice, and design and technology studies. Our professionally accredited B.Sc.(Arch.) and M.Arch. programs and research-based Ph.D. and new M.Sc.(Arch.) programs are energized by a close-knit and spirited community of students. The School is currently transforming its tenure-track faculty and launching large-scale collaborative research initiatives to confront the global challenges of climate change. The School is critically revising its structures and approaches to architectural education in response to passionate appeal from our community for racial justice.

We are seeking candidates who can benefit from this dynamic landscape and contribute to our current research and teaching priorities in any combination of the following areas:

- Foundational design education
- History and theory of architecture, land, ecology, and climate
- History of the built environment (pre-modern)
- Climate-responsive design
- Computational design and making

Opportunities:

The School of Architecture offers a collegial environment with opportunities for interaction and collaboration with world-class researchers within the School, across the University, and the city which is home to six major universities.

University:

Situated in the heart of bilingual Montreal, in Quebec where the official language is French, McGill University is a research-intensive institution rated among the top 25 in the world. It engages Montreal's vibrant and cosmopolitan urban environment. McGill University is an English-language university where most teaching and research activities are conducted in the English language, thereby requiring English communication both verbally and in writing.

Job Duties:

The successful candidate will be expected to teach undergraduate and graduate courses based on the School's needs in our B.Sc.(Arch.), M.Arch, M.Sc. (Arch.), and Ph.D. programs, recruit and advise doctoral students and undergraduate or graduate research assistants, and provide service to the McGill University is an English-language university where most teaching and research activities are conducted in the English language, thereby requiring English communication both verbally and in writing.

McGill University is committed to equity and diversity within its community and values academic rigour and excellence. We welcome and encourage applications from racialized persons/visible minorities, women, Indigenous persons, persons with disabilities, ethnic minorities, and persons of minority sexual orientations and gender identities, as well as from all qualified candidates with the skills and knowledge to engage productively with diverse communities.

At McGill, research that reflects diverse intellectual traditions, methodologies, and modes of dissemination and translation is valued and encouraged. Candidates are invited to demonstrate their research impact both within and across academic disciplines and in other sectors, such as government, communities, or industry.

McGill further recognizes and fairly considers the impact of leaves (e.g., family care or health-related) that may contribute to career interruptions or slowdowns. Candidates are encouraged to signal any leave that affected productivity, or that may have had an effect on their career path. This information will be considered to ensure the equitable assessment of the candidate's record.

McGill implements an employment equity program and encourages members of designated equity groups to self-identify. It further seeks to ensure the equitable treatment and full inclusion of persons with disabilities by striving for the implementation of universal design principles transversally, across all facets of the University community, and through accommodation policies and procedures. Persons with disabilities who anticipate needing accommodations for any part of the application process may contact, in confidence, accessibilityrequest.hr@mcgill.ca.

All qualified applicants are encouraged to apply; however, in accordance with Canadian immigration requirements, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.
