The Department of Civil and Urban Engineering at the NYU Tandon School of Engineering invites applications for a full time, non-tenure track, renewable faculty position in Water Resources Engineering, at the rank of Industry Assistant Professor or Industry Associate Professor, with a start date of September 1, 2025. The successful candidate will be responsible for teaching undergraduate and graduate-level courses in water resources engineering, fluid mechanics, and related disciplines. Additional duties include mentoring undergraduate and graduate students, engaging with industry professional organizations and networks, promoting programs within and outside the university, and service to the department, school, and university.

Qualifications

Teaching experience with evidence of teaching excellence is required. Applicants must have earned a doctoral degree in Civil or Environmental Engineering and have several years of academic and/or industry experience. Alternatively, candidates with an MS in Civil or Environmental Engineering and 15 years of water resources engineering professional experience will also be considered. Candidates with a Professional Engineering (PE) license are strongly encouraged to apply, as are those with the ability to integrate computing and machine learning applications into their courses.

About Us

New York University (NYU) is one of the top private universities in the United States with an unparalleled network of global campuses and academic centers. NYU's Tandon School of Engineering, located in the heart of Brooklyn, dates back to 1854, the founding year of both the New York University School of Civil Engineering and Architecture and the Brooklyn Collegiate and Polytechnic Institute. Backed by a historic commitment of $1 billion. The Engineering School is entering an exciting new phaseto recruit world-class faculty conducting groundbreaking basic and applied research in key areas. We arehome to a community of renowned faculty and undergraduate and graduate students united in a mission to understand and create technology that powers cities, enables worldwide communication, fights climate change, and builds healthier, safer, and more equitable real and digital worlds. The school's culture centers on encouraging rigorous, interdisciplinary collaboration and research; fostering inclusivity, entrepreneurial thinking, and diverse perspectives; and creating innovative and accessible pathways for lifelong learning in STEM.

NYU Tandon is committed to substantially increase the proportion of our faculty from historically underrepresented groups in STEM and we encourage candidates from such groups to apply. We aspire to create a climate where diversity and inclusion are not only appreciated but considered an asset forcreativity and innovation, and we seek faculty who have a real passion for a culturally diverse environment. We take pride in our high numbers of female students and students who are the first in their family to go to college. NYU belongs to the Higher Education Recruitment Consortium (HERC), which assists with dual-career searches, and our faculty are supported by a range of work-life balance programs provided by the NYU Office of Work Life.
