consistent with College of Engineering norms. The primary responsibilities include the two-semester capstone design sequence and other courses as needed by the department. This position will also provide the opportunity to develop complementary electives in areas related to the candidate's specialization and interests.

Candidates must have an expectation of completing a Ph.D. in Electrical Engineering or a closely related field by August 1, 2026. Applicants should have prior teaching experience as a teaching assistant, lead instructor, or other comparable experience.

The Department of Electrical Engineering offers Ph.D., MS, and undergraduate degrees. Teaching professors are expected to excel in classroom teaching, engage in the development of students outside the classroom, such as advising student clubs, providing individual mentoring, or supervising undergraduate research, and serve the Department and the University. More information about the department can be found at https://ee.nd.edu/

Applicants are invited to provide any or all of the following: cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, contact information for three professional references, and a statement regarding potential engagement with and commitment to the mission of the University of Notre Dame.

Applications must be received by January 15, 2026, to guarantee full consideration; however, the review of applications will continue until the position is filled. All materials can be submitted at https://apply.interfolio.com/177470

The University of Notre Dame is situated within the South Bend, Indiana metropolitan area, which has a population of approximately 325,000. South Bend is recognized for its relative affordability and strategic geographic location, approximately 75 minutes east of Chicago and 45 minutes from the Lake Michigan shoreline and Indiana Dunes National Park. These locations are accessible via the South Shore Line commuter rail. The city is also served by the South Bend International Airport, offering convenient air travel options.
